Annual Review Prize Lecture

In 1968 The Physiological Society's Committee initiated Annual Review Lectures which, subject to the agreement of the Editorial Board, are published in The Journal of Physiology. There is a £500 prize, which consists of £250 for the award and £250 as an honorarium.

Lectures and Prizes

International Prize Lecture

From 2001 to 2010, The Physiological Society had a standing agreement with the Australian Physiological Society (AuPS) whereby, in alternate years, The Society selected a lecturer to travel to Australia to deliver a short series of lectures in universities. This was a reciprocal arrangement with a member of the AuPS travelling to the UK in the intervening years. It was known as the Australian/UK Visiting Lectureship Scheme.

2002 D I Cook
2005 S C Gandevia

From 2011, The Society has sponsored the International Prize Lecture designed to be delivered in countries where there is a strong physiology community, but with whom The Society has previously had little or no interaction.

Previous lecturers:

2011 G E Mann (China)
2012 D Eisner (Egypt)
2013 R Vaughan-Jones (India)
2014 KM Spyer (Brazil)

Bayliss-Starling Prize Lecture

In 1960 The Physiological Society's Committee resolved that there should be a joint memorial to Bayliss and Starling, in the form of a triennial lectureship. From 2015, following a generous donation from The Bayliss and Starling Society, this lecture is now awarded annually and given alternately by an established physiologist and an early-career physiologist. There is a £500 prize. The lecture will be delivered at a Society meeting and, subject to the agreement of the Editorial Board, continue to be published in The Journal of Physiology.

Biller Prize Lecture - discontinued

The Biller award is a biennial award in memory of Kathy Biller, a young physiologist. It is given to a worker (under 35 years of age), in the field of renal or epithelial physiology and is presented in those years when England play Australia for the Ashes at cricket. The recipient presents a research review at a Society Meeting.

Previous lecturers:

2002 L Robson	2006 M Bailey
2004 D Ward

G L Brown Prize Lecture (peripatetic)

In 1975 The Physiological Society instituted a series of lectures in memory of Professor Sir Lindor Brown. The purpose of these lectures is to stimulate an interest in physiology. The Society chooses a lecturer whose name, with the title of the lecture, is then published. Departments are asked to notify The Society if they wish to invite the G L Brown Lecturer to their department. The lectures are not given during Scientific Meetings of The Society. Lectures since 1986 are published in Experimental Physiology, subject to the agreement of the Editorial Board. There is a £1000 prize, which consists of £750 for the award and £250 as an honorarium.

Previous lecturers:

1996/97 F M Ashcroft

G W Harris Prize Lecture - discontinued

In 1986 The Physiological Society instituted a triennial lecture in memory of the late Professor G W Harris. These lecturers were subject to the agreement of the Editorial Board, published in Experimental Physiology.

Previous lecturers:

1987 G Fink	1993 G J Dockray
1990 E M Wright	1996 I C A F Robinson

Lectures and Prizes

Hodgkin-Huxley-Katz Prize Lecture

In 1999 The Physiological Society's Committee proposed that there should be a biennial lecture celebrating the contributions to the physiological sciences of Alan Hodgkin, Andrew Huxley and Bernard Katz. To emphasise the international impact of their work, the lecture will normally be given by a distinguished physiologist working outside the United Kingdom or RoI. Subject to the agreement of the Editorial Board, these lectures are published in The Journal of Physiology. There is a £1,000 prize, which consists of £500 for the award and £500 as an honorarium.

Previous lecturers:

2000 R MacKinnon	2010 R Nicoll
2002 B Sakmann	2012 C Bargmann
2004 D Noble	2013 E M Schuman (at IUPS)
2006 T J Jentsch	2015 K Sipido
2008 E Kandel

Joan Mott Prize Lecture

In 1995 The Physiological Society received a bequest from Joan Mott which the Committee agreed to use to fund a biennial lecture, concerned with any area of physiology. The lecturer, preferably a woman, should attempt to make the contents of their lecture particularly relevant to young physiologists and also aim to enhance the profile and significance of women within the discipline of physiology. These Lectures will be published in Experimental Physiology, subject to the approval of its Editorial Board. There is a £500 prize, which consists of £250 for the award and £250 as an honorarium.

Previous lecturers:

1996 M Fitzgerald	2008 A L Fowden
1998 J M Marshall	2010 K Davies
2000 L Poston	2012 D Lipscombe

2004 B Casadei	2014 L Partridge
2006 S Wray	2015 H Daniel

Michael de Burgh Daly Prize Lecture

The Michael de Burgh Daly Prize Lecture is given biennially in memory of the distinguished physiologist under the auspices of the Cardiovascular, Respiratory and Autonomic Control Special Interest Group.

Previous lecturers:

2002 J M Marshall	2011 T Wang
2005 James F X Jones	2013 P Carmeliet (at IUPS)
2007 M J Joyner	2016 N Prabhakar
2009 C Nurse

Lectures and Prizes

Otto Hutter Teaching Prize

In 2009 The Society launched the Otto Hutter Teaching Prize to recognise outstanding teachers of undergraduate physiology and to raise the profile of physiology teaching. The prize's namesake, Professor Otto Hutter, emeritus Regius Professor of Physiology at University of Glasgow, is recognised as a passionate and innovative teacher. He pioneered perhaps the first, fully-integrated electrophysiological lab for junior teaching. He was also a virtuoso of small group teaching, famous for throwing the blackboard chalk to students as an inducement to do some of the board-work. The £1000 prize includes £500 for the winner and £500 for the host institution (the latter to support education and teaching in physiology). In addition, the recipient is invited to present a lecture at the main meeting.

Previous lecturers:

2010 M Cotter
2011 N Morris
2012 E Lloyd
2014 D Lewis
2015 J Harris

The Paton Lecture

This lecture, initiated in 1994 by the Historical Studies & Archives Subcommittee to commemorate Professor Sir William Paton's support and initiatives for promoting interest in the history of scientific experiments and ideas, is given on a historical aspect of physiology in association with a symposium or designated session closely relevant to the topic concerned.

Previous lecturers:

1994 J W Severinghaus	2009 D W Richter
1995 H H Ussing	2010 M Esler
1996 P D Wall	2011 J West
1997 V B Mountcastle*	2012 J Mitchell
1998 D Todes	2013 G Burnstock (IUPS)
2005 J H Coote	2014 P Sleight
2007 D Noble	2015 T Tansey
2008 KM Spyer

*V B Mountcastle was unable to deliver his lecture owing to ill-health

The Paton Prize

The Paton Prize was established in 1994 by the Historical Studies & Archives Committee to encourage the study of the history of the major ideas and concepts that have shaped modern physiology. The Prize takes the form of a bursary to support such studies, with funding of up to £1,000 to cover travel and incidental expenses. The Subcommittee wishes to promote interest in the history of physiology among younger Affiliates and Members of The Society, as well as more established scientists. It is intended that these bursaries will be financed by the interest on The Paton Fund, being an endowment fund originated by a donation from Professor Sir William Paton with a matching donation from The Society.

The Physiological Society Annual Public Lecture

The Physiological Society initiated an annual public lecture in 2005 to be delivered at The Society's Main Meeting. The Lecture is designed to further the promotion and public understanding of physiology to the general public and schools.

Previous lecturers:

2005 J F R Paton	2011 R Foster
2006 D Attwell	2012 G Leng
2007 Not awarded in this year	2013 R Foster (at IUPS)
2008 P Weissberg	2014 R Winston
2009 S O'Rahilly	2015 S Scott
2010 N J Rothwell

Sharpey-Schafer Lecture and Prize

In 1980 and 1981 The Physiological Society received bequests from Sir Edward Sharpey-Schafer and from his daughter Miss G M Sharpey-Schafer to institute a triennial lecture to be given alternately by an established physiologist (preferably but not necessarily from abroad) and by an early-career physiologist chosen by The Society. The lecture, to be called 'The Sharpey-Schafer Lecture, is in memory of Sir Edward Sharpey-Schafer FRS and of his grandson Professor E P Sharpey-Schafer FRCP, who was Professor of Medicine at St Thomas' Hospital, London. In 1990 the Committee agreed that the lecturer should also receive a Prize from funds accumulating from the bequests.

It is customary, but not mandatory, for the lecture to be published in Experimental Physiology, subject to the approval of the Editorial Board.

Previous lecturers:

1983 T N Wiesel	2002 E Neher
1986 D I Attwell	2005 N H McClenaghan (to be delivered in 2006)
1989 B Hille	2008 W F Boron
1992 G L Collingridge	2011 W Marcotti
1995 J Folkman	2013 W A Catterall (at IUPS)
1998 J F R Paton (delivered in 1999)

Lectures and Prizes

Wellcome Prize Lecture - discontinued

The Wellcome Trustees agreed in 1985 to provide a sum of money to enable The Physiological Society to institute a Prize Lecture for young physiologists to encourage them and bring their work to general notice. The Prize, to be awarded biennially by a panel comprising members of the Prizes & Prize Lectures Committee and a representative nominated by the Wellcome Trust, is in the form of a lecture, an award and a medal presented at the Annual General Meeting in the year of the award. These lectures are, subject to the agreement of the Editorial Board, published in The Journal of Physiology. This scheme will be reviewed by the Wellcome Trustees in 2008.

The lecturer must be a young physiologist (less than 40 years of age) who is permanently resident in the UK or ROI who is considered to have made an outstanding contribution to physiological science. There is a £1,000 prize, which consists of £500 for the award and £500 as an honorarium.

Previous lecturers:

1986 K A C Martin	1998 L Lagnado
1988 D A Eisner (delivered in 1989)	2000 D Riccardi
1990 A J King (delivered in 1991)	2002 A B Parekh
1992 H R Matthews (delivered in 1993)	2004 A Gourine
1994 W Reik (delivered in 1995)	2006 H Kennedy
1996 S O Sage (delivered in 1997)	2008 A Trafford (final year)

GSK Prize Lecture - discontinued

Instituted in 2010 with generous support from GSK, this prize is for early-career physiologists to encourage them and bring their work to general notice. It is awarded annually and comes with a prize of £1,000.

Previous lecturers:

2010 J Kittler	2012 H Shiels
2011 Not awarded	2013 M Shah (at IUPS - final year)
